Skybus Flights from North Carolina to Portsmouth Int'l Begin
Greensboro, Winston-Salem areas now open to travelers

(Portsmouth) Skybus continues to expand its presence at the Portsmouth International Airport at Pease (PSM). The low-fare carrier began two direct flights to and from North Carolina on January 15th, bringing its total number of offerings at PSM to six. The flights make the Greensboro/Winston-Salem area easily accessible to travelers via the Piedmont Triad International Airport (PTI) in Greensboro.

“We’re very excited about Skybus’ continued growth and even happier that Portsmouth International is a significant part of that growth,” said PSM Manager Bill Hopper. “The decision to add two daily flights to North Carolina, in addition to their existing flights to markets in Ohio and Florida, is a strong indication of the confidence Skybus has in New Hampshire’s Seacoast region. This is just the kind of niche market we said would be successful at PSM. Our passenger numbers and full parking lots certainly reflect that.”

At the news conference in Greensboro where the flights were originally announced, Skybus CEO Bill Diffenderffer said, “We think travelers from the Piedmont Triad region and throughout North Carolina are going to be attracted to our outrageously low fares and our great destinations.” He added, “The response to our initial service from PTI to our home in Columbus has been beyond all of our expectations, and we’re excited to begin offering direct service from the Piedmont Triad to cities (like Portsmouth) throughout the country.”
